

Professional Financial Strategies, Inc.

Form CRS – Client Relationship Summary

Item 1: Introduction

Professional Financial Strategies, Inc. (“Advisor”, “we”, “our”, or “us”) is registered with the Securities Exchange Commission (“SEC”) as an investment adviser. Our services and compensation structure differ from a registered broker-dealer, and it is important for you to understand the differences between those structures. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at www.investor.gov/CRS. The site also provides educational materials about investment advisers, broker-dealers, and investing. The italicized sentences appearing in text boxes below are intended to be “conversation starters” for you to have with us, as required by the instructions to Form CRS.

Item 2: Relationships and Services – What investment services and advice can you provide me?

Advisor provides wealth management services primarily on an assets under management fee basis, to individuals, high net worth individuals, families, retirement plans, family trusts, estates and charitable trusts (our “clients” or “retail investors”). Advisor also provides personal financial planning specializing in retirement income, tax and legacy strategies. Personal consultations wealth planning prior to engaging wealth management services broadly target five areas: financial and retirement planning, tax planning, protection planning, legacy planning, and charitable planning. Incidental areas like college aid and pension benefit planning may be provided separately.

The type of services a client can receive and the fees they will pay will depend upon the level of services provided. Advisor can provide different levels of financial planning, retirement planning, tax planning, wealth planning and/or similar planning, but only to the extent requested. To proceed with implementing any recommendations from planning, both must mutually agree to do so in writing. Otherwise, neither Advisor nor its representatives assist clients beyond presenting planning recommendations. Unlike investment management, a client’s financial or wealth planning are not continuously monitored. Advisor may recommend specialists from a select network of professionals for non-investment services, such as legal or tax preparation. The client is not obligated to engage services from those non-related professionals. Client retains absolute discretion over terms of any proposed engagement and is free to accept or reject any recommendation made by those non-related professionals.

Financial management for investing is the core of Advisor’s wealth management services. The Advisor provides discretionary investment advice limited to certain types of accounts and securities. There are four financial management levels with corresponding wealth planning services incidentally provided. As part of its best interest responsibilities, Advisor will monitor client investment portfolios on an ongoing basis to determine when any changes may be necessary. Additionally, Advisor may recommend assets in certain client accounts be apportioned within separate accounts among investment managers not affiliated with Advisor. For assets in those accounts, the Independent Investment Manager(s) shall have day-to-day responsibility for discretionary management. Advisor shall render investment advisory services relative to ongoing monitoring and review of account performance, investment strategy and investing methodologies as well as tax and cash management considerations.

Clients may, at any time impose restrictions or limitations, in writing, either regarding investing in certain securities or restricting sales of certain securities. No client is under any obligation to rollover retirement plan assets to an account we manage. Advisor may offer non-discretionary advisory services in connection with employer retirement plans. For more detailed information about our advisory business and the types of clients we service, please see Items 4 and 7, respectively in our Form ADV Part 2A.

Item 3: Fees, Costs, Conflicts, and Standard of Conduct – What fees will I pay?

Advisor is compensated by fees and not commissions for asset management and financial planning advice. The Advisor’s fee schedule has both fixed and variable components. Ideally, the total client household fee will be close to or more than the minimum Advisory fee. The fee for ongoing financial management services ordinarily includes basic wealth consulting services as requested; levels of service beyond the basic level are subject to an increased fee, and only at client request. Availability of more wealth consulting may be offered under certain circumstances. Independent Investment Managers will charge a separate investment advisory fee; the Advisor’s standard fee schedule may allow a portion of trustee-related fees to be offset. Planning fees could be offset due to reimbursements to related parties of Advisor; Advisor will fully disclose all such reimbursements.

The standard minimum Financial Planning & Wealth Consulting (FPWC) fee for financial planning advice (per CFP Board standards) up to the point implementation is $10,000 and may be greater. Retirement Stress Testing and introductory planning services may be $5,000 and credited toward the WPC fee for additional personal planning. For hourly engagement situations, charges may range between $125 to $500 hourly depending on staff assigned. Hourly planning fees would be in addition to financial management fees for investing. For investment management services, minimum client charges generally will range between $1,250 to $5,000 quarterly and up. The incidental level of planning services provided will increase as assets under management for fee increases beyond certain levels. Advisor's fee (between 0.40% and 1.50%) is calculated as an annual percentage (%) of the market value of assets placed under management or advisement. Fees between $100,000 up to $1 million may be increased for some clients up to 50 bps annually for higher levels of management services due to assets not directly covered by the advisory fee schedule. Advisor's advisory management fee shall be prorated and paid quarterly, in advance, based upon quarterly beginning account balances that include all cash balances, which are treated as any other asset.

Advisor, in its sole discretion, may charge a lesser financial management fee for investing services and/or reduce or waive its annual minimum fee based on certain criteria. Clients subject to an annual minimum fee may pay a percentage fee effectively higher than the annual fee percentage referenced in the Standard Management fee schedules. Minimum fees for arranging implementation of life income annuities, deferred income annuities and/or life insurance is at least $5,000, and may be greater but may be waived due to reimbursement fees paid to a related party with client consent. For more detailed information about our investment advisory and other fees and expenses and account minimum fees, please see Item 5 in our Form ADV Part 2A.

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we act as your investment adviser, we must act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. Also, CFP® professionals are fiduciaries with a duty of loyalty and care. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Below are examples to help you understand what this means:

- Advisor may recommend that a client roll over their retirement plan assets into an account we manage. Such a recommendation creates a conflict of interest if we were to earn new or increased compensation as a result of the rollover. However, we are fiduciaries within the meaning of Title I of ERISA and/or the Internal Revenue Code to act in your best interest. We could earn a higher fee for management of equity or balanced account strategies. This presents a conflict of interest since we would have an economic incentive to allocate more assets to equity securities rather than to income annuities and earn more long-term compensation. We will allocate assets consistent with your designated investment objective. For more detailed information about our conflicts of interest, please review Item 4, 5, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 14 of Form ADV Part 2A.

CONVERSATION STARTER:

- How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your financial professionals make money?

Our financial professionals are compensated primarily by salary and are eligible to receive discretionary bonuses. Neither Advisor nor its representatives accept compensation (commissions) from the sale of securities or other investment related products for performing investment advisory services. As stated in ADV Part 2A Item 5(A), related persons can receive reimbursements for insurance product implementation. In such a situation, Wealth Planning and Consulting fees otherwise payable would be waived, but only when such implementation is in your best interest compared to products paying no commissions. You should discuss your financial professional's compensation directly with them.

Item 4 – Disciplinary History

Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history? No.

We encourage you to visit www.investor.gov/CRS to research our firm and our financial professionals. Furthermore, we encourage you to ask your current financial professional: “As a financial professional, do you have any disciplinary history? If so, for what type of conduct?”
